

Walking Down the Street (hip hop) from Intertwined Lyrics

ABORIGINAL MAN:

Walking down the street
feeling just fine
got a million little things running through my mind gotta make enough dough to pay all these bills
gotta keep close to country to these here hills
everywhere I look everywhere I turn
there's so much history
so much to learn
gotta know my people know my place

(SPOKEN) ABORIGINAL MAN:

Sorry, sorry I know you wanna get this done, but I really think we need to rewrite that part.
Why? Cause saying, 'gotta know my place' is a bit triggering to be honest.
Can we say, 'gotta know my people, celebrate our race' instead?
Yeah, ok, cool let's take it from the top.

ABORIGINAL MAN:

Walking down the street
feeling just fine
got a million little things
running through my mind
gotta make enough dough
to pay all these bills
gotta keep close to country
to these here hills
everywhere I look
everywhere I turn
there's so much history
so much to learn
gotta know my people
celebrate our race
learn our language gotta know about place

(SPOKEN) ABORIGINAL MAN:

Yeah sorry. Cut, cut. Can we just take a break please? I just don't think hip hop really suits me you know? Look, I get this is important but I feel you're making me into a stereotype. You know, not all black kids like hip hop – some of us like country or Elvis 'thank you very much'.
Can't I just be myself?

All rights reserved

Lusi Austin Lemon Tea Theatre 2024